The gentle art of opening a bottle of bubbly that is sealed with a crown seal ... is akin to the gentle art of easing out a cork

- ◇ have the bottle well chilled [3-4°C] and on a flat surface
- ◇ firstly, cut the label strip just below the bottom edge of the rim on both sides of the neck
- ◇ then, carefully lift the crown seal just breaking the seal so some gas escapes ... you will hear a little, soft, hiss...sss- wait 5 seconds
- ◇ and then, gently turn the bottle approx. 90 degrees and again carefully lift the crown seal ... another soft hiss- wait 5 seconds
- ◇ a final rotation and lift the crown seal off!

And voila! A beautifully opened bottle, with no gushing.
